

At the crossing opposite the grocer, the white van blocked the view for eleven minutes. Record duration and position without photographing the driver or making assumptions about who owns it.